Victim of home invasion grabbed by the throat

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

It was the middle of the night when Sarah and George Hudgins heard someone knocking at their Dogwood Court home. The person at the door was yelling "My wife is hurt in the street. Please help. My wife is hurt."

Just as Sarah Hudgins opened the door, a man in a long-sleeved black shirt and pants, wearing a ski mask, strong-armed his way into the house.

Mrs. Hudgins said he grabbed her by the throat, pushed his way into the house and wouldn't let go.

"He didn't have time to say what he wanted," Mrs. Hudgins said.

According to Cynthiana Police Sgt. Eric Kendall, Mr. Hudgins then entered the room carrying a handgun.

"George pointed that gun right at him and [the intruder] took right off," she said.

It was when the suspect saw the handgun that he released Mrs. Hudgins and ran back out the door, down the driveway and away from the home.

The Hudginses described the suspect as being about 5-foot-7, wearing a black shirt and jeans with some type of red clothing around his neck.

Mrs. Hudgins said she and her husband were in bed asleep when the knocking awoke them. She said when George didn't get up to go to the door, she did.

However, Mr. Hudgins wasn't far behind. She said he looked out the window and, when he did not see any kind of car, he became suspicious.

That's when he entered the room with the handgun.

"It's been nerve-racking around here," she said, noting that she has learned her lesson about opening her door in the middle of the night.

"If you're not scared, there's something wrong with you," Mrs. Hudgins said. "Elderly people need to leave their doors locked. Don't open them for nothing."

Kendall said he arrived at their home about 1:30 a.m. However, he said the suspect had already fled the area.

Kendall said there are other recent incidents that may be related to the Hudgins' home invasion.

On Monday night, someone tried to get in the back door of 414 S. Elmarch Ave.

Then on Tuesday night, a woman was approached on Chelsea Drive about 11:30 p.m. while she was getting her children out of the car.

"We want to catch these guys," Kendall said.

Anyone who sees anything suspicious should contact the police department at 234-7100 or E911.

SHARING IDEAS — Commonwealth Attorney Doug Miller served as the special guest moderator for the candidates forum last Thursday evening. The forum, sponsored by the Cynthiana-Harrison County Tea Party, was hosted by party member John Chamberlin. Between presentations, the two spent time defining legal terms and preparing listeners and audience members for the next debate.

Tea Party hosts candidate forum for three races

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

Members of the Harrison County Tea Party held a candidate forum last Thursday night.

Invited candidates were those vying for Harrison County Judge-Executive, 18th Judicial District Family Court Judge and Harrison County Sheriff.

The forum was held at the Harrison County Extension Office with Commonwealth's Attorney Doug Miller serving as moderator. Chuck Duffey and Avi Bear were official time keepers.

Candidates in each of the races were asked a series of five questions. They were given the questions at 6:30 p.m. with the forum getting underway at 7 p.m.

The Extension meeting room was filled with voters, some curious about candidates' platforms and others there to support their family or friend.

For nearly two hours candidates in the three races listened to their opponents' responses and formulated their own to issues affecting Harrison County.

Family Court judge

Question #1: Please give a brief biography and professional background, emphasizing your qualifications for this position and why you want to be (remain) a Family Court Judge.

Heather Fryman: Heather Fryman said that she has lived her life in Harrison County. A graduate of UK law school, Fryman has dedicated the majority her professional life to family law.

For the past six years, she has served as an assistant attorney general, representing the interests of the state of Kentucky in felony and capital cases and has argued several cases before the Kentucky Supreme Court.

As an attorney with children of her own, Fryman

Voters should be prepared for Tuesday's primary election

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

Selecting the best candidate for the job may not be the most difficult thing about Tuesday's May primary election.

Linda Furnish, Harrison County Clerk, whose office is responsible for running elections, said voters need to be informed not only of the issues with the candidates but also with the rules and regulations as they relate to elections.

"I'm afraid there's some misinformation out there, particularly about magisterial districts and who is eligible to vote," Furnish said.

"This is definitely the biggest county wide election I have seen since I began in 1986," Furnish said. "Primary elections are always difficult for voters."

She said voters promise candidates that they will vote for them only to find out they can't vote for the candidate because they are not registered in the same party or district.

"It is the most confusing thing for candidates and voters," she said.

She said voters who have access to computers should go to www.harrisoncounty-fiscalcourt.com where they will be able to see all of the district/precinct maps.

Precincts

The precincts are the same and the precinct voting locations are the same, Furnish said. Each of the county's public schools serve as precinct voting locations.

Voters living in the Southside, Clifton Village, Sheriff's Office, Extension Office and Licking Valley precincts will vote at Southside Elementary gym.

Precincts for City Fire Station No. 2, library and the river will vote at the Harrison County High School cafeteria.

Westside, Kinman and Central will vote at Westside Elementary's multi-purpose room.

Northside, Berry and Kelat will vote at Northside Elementary.

Buena Vista, Eastside and Sunrise will go to Eastside Elementary.

Leesburg and Connersville will vote in the multi-purpose room at Harrison County Middle

Magistrate District 6

Eric Tedder for Family Court Judge

Serving Harrison, Nicholas, Pendleton and Robertson Counties

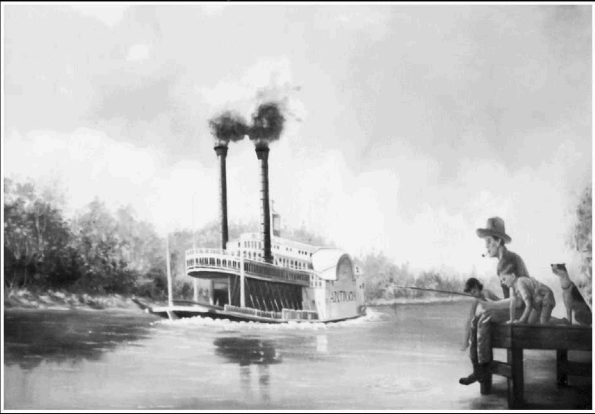

More than 4 out of every 100,000 children in Kentucky died as a result of abuse and neglect in 2007. This made Kentucky the deadliest state in the nation for cases involving child abuse and neglect according to the non partisan Every Child Matters Education Fund. From 2011-2012, 32 Kentucky children died as a result of neglect and abuse (Youth Today). In 2013 over 294,000 children in the US were the victims of abuse according to the National Children's Alliance. These statistics are sobering, disgusting, and completely unacceptable! As your next Family Court Judge I will take a proactive, collaborative approach to preventing and curtailing child abuse. I will work with our school systems, our social services, and within the judicial system aggressively to protect our children and save their lives. As a father of three and as a proud Kentuckian I know we can do better, as a human being I know we must! On May 20, 2014 cast your ballot to protect Kentucky's children. Vote for the candidate who defines the problem and provides a solution. Vote Eric Tedder for Family Court Judge, vote for change we can believe in!

Columbia Gas employees work to repair gas leak that created a plume of natural gas over 10 feet high.

Gas leak closes New Lair Road Thursday

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

New Lair Road between Harrison County High School and Cynthiana Tire was closed to traffic for four hours Thursday due to a major leak in a Columbia Gas pipeline that sent a white plume of natural gas skyward around residential homes.

Lisa Smith, Columbia Gas director of communications and community relations, said that the blowing gas did not pose a hazard to residents along New Lair Road or Miley Avenue or even to students at nearby Harrison County High School.

Smith did commend the Cynthiana Public Works Department for taking the appropriate steps to contact Columbia Gas first when the leak occurred and then took measures to seal off the area from passing traffic.

According to Gary Royalty, director of public works for Cynthiana, a crew of city workers were installing a 2-inch water line along New Lair Road when they accidentally hit the three-inch gas line next to it, opening a gash in the side, he said.

Public works had done its advance work correctly, Royalty said. They had contacted the state's 811 "Call Before You Dig" line and Columbia Gas had marked out the location of the gas line along the excavation route for the water line.

"The water line and the gas line run roughly parallel with one another. The water line is installed a little deeper, but the distance was still tight," Royalty said.

The crew was about 25 feet short of finishing the water line's trench when the back hoe hit the gas line.

"Crew foreman David Pittman ordered the work area cleared and immediately reported the leak to the gas company," he said. "He then informed the city office of the situation."

Harrison County's emergency dispatch alerted police and emergency response crews to close down the affected section of New Lair Road until Columbia Gas workers could arrive to repair the damage.

The Columbia Gas company, in turn, contacted David Case, assistant superintendent of the Harrison County School System, and local residents to assure them that there was no need to evacuate the area.

While the gas leak ended without anyone seriously injured, the incident does underscore the need to contact 811 before attempting any kind of digging. The law applies equally to private citizens on their property as well as commercial builders and local governments.

In fact, in July new Kentucky legislation will go into effect to dramatically increase fines on any person or entity that fails to check with the state's 811 service before digging and damages gas lines or other utilities, Smith said.

"Cynthiana observed proper procedures. But property owners thinking about installing a below ground pool or doing other home renovations need to remember to call 811, too," she concluded.

Changing party affiliation

Furnish said one of the concerns with Tuesday's primary is that many registered voters in Harrison County changed their party affiliation after Dec. 31, 2013.

"Anyone who did this will not be able to vote in any partisan races," she said, adding that the only non-partisan race for Harrison County will be the family court judge race.

There are four candidates for family court judge. That slate will be narrowed down to the top two candidates who will appear on the November ballot.

First-time voters, who registered prior to April 21, will be able to vote for candidates in the party that they registered, either Republican or Democrat. If the voter selected "other," they will only be able to vote in the non-partisan family court judge race.

Signs at polling locations

Furnish also noted that all signs on vehicles should be removed before going to a polling location.

"No one on election day is permitted to do any electioneering within 300 feet of the entrance," Furnish said.

There is an exception for small bumper stickers, but the large window signs must be removed, she said.

Absentee voting

Furnish asked that anyone needing an emergency absentee ballot should call her office at 234-7130.

The mailed absentee ballot deadline was Monday.

Are you registered?

Voters can check their eligibility by going to www.elect.ky.gov. On the right side of the screen, scroll to "voter information center." Enter name and date of birth to determine eligibility for voting in the primary. It will also provide precinct, district information and driving instructions to the polling place.

"I know that not everyone can get to a computer," Furnish said. "Call us."

She said it's much better to call prior to election day than it is to try to find out information at the last minute.

On election day

An additional polling place employee will be at the door to each location.

Furnish said this precinct officer will have a complete list of registered voters in Harrison County and where each voter should vote.

Election night changes

The office of the county clerk will be open during its regular hours on Tuesday to take care of motor vehicle issues.

However, when the office closes at 4 p.m., the doors will be locked.

Candidates will be able to get results as they are released on WCYN.

"We had to do that this year because of the countywide election workload," Furnish said.

The results will also be printed in the Cynthiana Democrat, which will be available Wednesday afternoon at newsstands or at the county's website Wednesday morning.

The rise of the new American ghost town?

For those of you who may not have heard the news, Nicholas County Hospital announced Monday that it would be filing for Chapter 7 bankruptcy.

At 5 p.m. of that same day, the hospital emergency room ceased accepting patients.

The only silver lining in the announcement is that the board members of the former Johnson Mathers Health Care, Inc. had the foresight to separate the nursing home from the hospital several years ago.

In those days, before there was any talk of an affordable care act, measures were being taken to insulate Nicholas County's long term care facility from economic harm. So, apparently, there were plenty of warnings even then that the hospital was facing an uncertain future.

Despite those clear indicators of imminent disaster, I still can't help but take this news personally.

About 60 years ago, my grandfather, Judge Walter Shepherd, donated land from his farm on Scrub Grass Road near downtown Carlisle for the first "modern" hospital in Nicholas County.

Two decades later, that version of the hospital was obsolete — and had been for several years.

The county passed a tax ordinance to buy the property on which the existing building stands. Johnson Mathers Health Care, Inc. was formed and a new hospital and nursing home was constructed.

In the early 90s, I spent eight years as the marketing and public relations specialist for the hospital and nursing home. Jockey International was still operating its sewing and dye plants next door to the medical campus, so there was some private insurance on which the facility could rely to offset the disproportionate share of its many, many Medicare and Medicaid patients.

But even then, the competitive atmosphere surrounding the small community hospital was eroding its share of the market.

Nicholas County was no longer insulated from outside market pressures. Roads had improved - and continue to improve. Travel between communities was easier - and with ongoing road expansion projects, the commutes will get even shorter.

I have heard the comment made more than once how lucky the people of Carlisle should feel to have such a well-preserved collection of historic downtown buildings.

With a bit of spit and polish, and investment, the downtown square could be a tourist showpiece of the “way things used to be.”

The problem, however, asserts itself daily during the work week. Between 5 a.m. and 8 a.m., the streets are filled with kids going to school. The majority of the remaining working people are headed out of the county to their jobs.

By mid-morning, this beautiful historic square is as hushed and quiet as any old western ghost town. Few people walk the sidewalks on their way to lunch or running errands.

It's pleasant, but it is not prosperity and left on its own, even with US 68 highway expansion on the horizon, Nicholas County is not in a position to be the architect of its own future.

That future is being dictated by the whims of fortune.

My wife and I settled our roots in the area years ago. The likelihood is that we will, happily, spend the remainder of our lives in Nicholas County.

Hopefully, a firm somewhere may see the possibility of running a trauma service or an urgent treatment center out of the remains of the old hospital.

One can always hope.

But it also places Harrison County in an interesting spectator's position, witnessing a new surge in economic growth in the bluegrass region on one border while seeing how that growth affects outlying counties ill-equipped to dictate their own future.

Josh Shepherd
News Writer

Trips to Lexington, which used to take an hour or more, can be made in about forty minutes.

And there is a hospital in every town - Flemingsburg, Mount Sterling, Paris, Cynthiana, Maysville - each with its corresponding staff of primary care providers and specialists.

Not to mention how much easier it is to reach Lexington's own suite of mega-hospitals.

I have read several comments that lay the demise of Nicholas County Hospital at the feet of the Affordable Care Act. And its likely that health care reform hastened its demise.

But by the time the hospital's board reached its conclusion on Monday, one could see that business plans for the hospital in the last decade were desperate efforts to avoid the inevitable.

Since the announcement of the hospital's bankruptcy, my initial reaction was to plant a lily on Nicholas County's hopes for any kind of growth. The loss of Jockey International was a hard enough blow to the county. But at least there was a school system and a hospital, each providing professional-level jobs and each being an essential element to any effort to attract manufacturers or other types of business to the area.

Losing its health care facility is lethal.

But on a bigger picture scale, this news is also evidence of the folly of Kentucky having so many counties the size of Nicholas and smaller.

One might have made a compelling argument for Kentucky being composed of 120 counties when mountain travel was difficult and the Commonwealth was top-loaded with isolated Appalachian communities.

But at this time, a person can drive from Pike County to Fulton County in about six hours and hardly ever see anything but four-lane highways.

Existing in its own vacuum apart from its neighboring counties, the small Kentucky counties like Nicholas and Robertson cannot hope to thrive. The world is growing beyond them.

said that she has a particular interest in adjudicating and enforcing the laws that protect children and families.

There are a number of areas where young children are victimized and put at risk, she said. Too many of this area's children are already facing serious problems and there are new threats and abuses cropping up through technology and internet social media.

As a judge, she would address those concerns and aspire to be firm and consistent in rendering final judgments.

Sam Arnold: Sam Arnold is a native of Harrison County with 42 years of experience in the practice of law. He earned his law degree from the University of Kentucky in 1972 and has conducted his practice in Cynthiana.

He is the father of three children and has four grandchildren.

The bulk of his professional practice has concerned family matters: divorce, custody hearings, domestic violence, abuse and adoption proceedings.

"When families are ordered to appear in Family Court, they are in pain. They are suffering from profound problems," Arnold said. "I want to bring the depth of my experience as a family lawyer to help with their suffering."

Arnold welcomes the chance to have a far greater impact on helping families heal from the bench, he said.

Barbara Paul: (incumbent) Paul has served as Family Court Judge for about five and half years, having been elected to the position against three other candidates in the last election.

In addition to her degree from the Chase College of Law, Paul also earned education degrees and is certified to teach. She feels that her twin background in education and law gives her an advantage when it comes to family cases.

Before becoming the district family court judge, Paul served as a family court attorney the year that the Family Court was approved for this area. In the intervening years, she worked with this area's first family court judge, the honorable David Melcher.

In her legal career, she has worked with many divorce and custody actions and represented the interests of children in cases of parental abuse and neglect.

Eric Tedder: Tedder is a practicing attorney in Nicholas County. He has been married for 20 years and has three children.

Tedder began his legal career in corporate law. After four years in that field, he said that he wanted to make more of a difference in people's lives. Therefore, he opened a solo practice in Carlisle.

Family law formed the bulk of his cases and helped define his practice and interests. In his experience as an attorney, he has tried child abuse and neglect cases, child support and damaging custody battles. He has witnessed the drug addiction and violence issues that are implied by these cases.

"I want to stand up for all children who have not had the advantages my own kids had. I believe that parents must be good role models. That's the way it should work with families. When that doesn't happen, a judge needs to step in," Tedder said.

Question 2: What is your judicial philosophy as it relates to this office?

Arnold: Each party involved in a court proceeding is entitled to proper notice, Arnold said. Those appearing in court are entitled to a reasonable court date, an impartial judge and fair judgment based on the evidence presented.

The parties must also respect the court's decision in the matter and the judge must hold those parties accountable to the court's decisions and expectations.

Paul: A judge must ensure that all who come before the bench are treated fairly and respectfully.

That duty applies to the families that come before the family court, but also to the attorneys who are representing their client's interests.

Everyone involved in a family court proceeding is trying to do what's in the best interests of the children and family, she said.

"Like a doctor who takes the Hippocratic oath, a family court judge must first 'do no harm.' They need to avoid decisions that make the situation worse," Paul said.

Tedder: In many instances in family court, there is a lot of anger and mistrust, he said. One of the important jobs of the judge is for the parties in a particular case to appreciate that they will be treated fairly.

A judge must also try and calm the people involved, try and get them to see the larger picture instead of feeling persecuted by the court's decision, Tedder said.

"In every case, a judge must act in the best interests of the child. And, a judge should expect the court's decisions to be respected," Tedder said.

It is further very important for the judge's decisions to be consistent and in keeping with applicable statutes, he added.

In rebuttal comments, Tedder said that individuals need to understand that there are consequences for their actions and need to know what those consequences will be Fryman: Family courts were created to put a child's interests first and that must influence a judge's every decision, Fryman said.

"I do not endorse judicial activism. A judge's duty is to adhere to the laws handed down to them from the state and federal constitutions - not re-write them," Fryman said.

As a family court judge, she said that she would apply the law to every situation brought to the bench.

Heather Fryman

Through the law, a judge sets reasonable expectations on parents and then has systems in place to see that those expectations are properly enforced.

#3 - What aspects of being a Family Court judge are most challenging and how do you plan to meet those challenges?

Paul: The biggest challenge is the ever-increasing court dockets on neglect and abuse cases, Paul said.

The drug problem in the four county area she serves is at the root of most abuse and neglect charges.

"This is a big challenge with no clear answers. But in every instance of abuse, there is some kind of addiction involved," Paul said.

Her experience has shown that there are different sets of needs in the four-county area and she is constantly working with staff and local representatives to devise an answer to the continuing problem.

Tedder: The most difficult aspect of being a family court judge, he said, is making decisions that have a direct affect on families.

A judge cannot just deal with the legal questions, he said, they also must deal with the emotions of clients.

"People are very touchy of courts that they feel are messing with their families," Tedder said.

Maintaining an even temperament and level-headedness is vital to the family court process, he said. It is important to let people know you are willing to work through these issues with them.

Fryman: Fryman agreed with Tedder that dealing with heightened emotions is a family court judge's biggest challenge.

In addition to her law degree, Fryman said she also has academic and practical experience in psychology. That background helps when dealing with people in high emotional states, she said.

"To a real extent, we are telling people how to run their lives. It takes some understanding of the human mind" to advise people without provoking their anger.

Fryman also appreciated how much the drug problem in this area contributes to family court issues. It is important, she said, to instill in people a sense of personal accountability to comply with the orders of the family court and apply consequences when needed.

Arnold: The biggest challenge to a family court judge is to ensure that kids are returned to a safe, secure and stable home.

It is his strong belief that family courts need representatives, known as "friends of the court" to help with the process of unifying or dealing with issues of broken families.

These individuals, he argued, would help families comply with family court orders and be empowered to slightly modify them as appropriate without forcing parties to clog up dockets with smaller matters.

Question #4: If elected (re-elected), which area or service would receive the majority of your attention and how would you hold yourself and your staff accountable?

Tedder: It appeared to Tedder that truancy cases and the neglect and abuse dockets are fast becoming areas of focus for improvement in family courts going forward.

Too often in homes where there is an addiction problem, he said that the situation can get between kids and their education.

"I can't order parents of children to get off drugs. It doesn't happen that way. They must make the choice," Tedder said.

But at the same time, chil-

Barbara Paul

dren can't get "short shrift" by having their education neglected or the problem becomes cyclical. Children follow in their parents' footsteps unless there is an intervention.

Fryman: Fryman also said a focus for improvement must be the neglect and abuse docket, particularly in decisions to take kids away from parents.

Children are falling through cracks in the system, she said, and taking kids away from the family is a decision that must be taken very seriously.

Judges must always ask themselves if removing the child from the family is absolutely necessary.

It's not a decision that she is comfortable making without consulting reports and assessments from cabinet members and specialists working with the family to deal with problems. If the child is at serious risk, she will do what needs to be done, but it is a decision she won't take lightly.

Arnold: He commented that the juvenile section needs to be of primary focus to the family judge's office.

He re-iterated his statement that kids must have safe, secure and stable homes and that, as judge,

Eric Tedder

he would need to be fully informed of living conditions.

He could not make a decision to keep a family together if there was any indication that the child would be placed at some level of risk.

The judge's office must be ultimately accountable for such decisions, he said, and he would call for a review of procedures to ensure that child's environment was both stable and secure.

In rebuttal statements, Arnold said that if it took removal of a child from a high risk environment, so be it.

Paul: The incumbent's position was very much the same. The neglect and abuse docket is a point where improvements need to be made.

However, she said that there are a variety of required procedures to which a judge must adhere that adds to the backlog. State laws and mandates regarding family law are geared toward re-unifying families if at all possible, not breaking them up.

She said that no matter how bad the parent, there is still a child involved who has strong emotional ties to them.

If re-elected, Paul said she

Wayne Wheeler Fitzgerald, 88

Wayne Wheeler Fitzgerald, 88, Cynthiana, died Saturday, May 10, 2014 at Harrison Memorial Hospital.

He was born Sept. 21, 1925, in Hazard, Ky., to the late Cornelius John and Glenna Wheeler Fitzgerald. The family made Cynthiana their home in 1926.

He graduated from Cynthiana High School in 1943, enlisting in the Navy in June of the same year. He served in the South Pacific and the Admiralty Islands as a motor mechanical mate until 1946. Upon his discharge from military service, he entered Cumberland School of Law, graduating in 1950. He opened his law practice on Pike Street in Cynthiana, where it remained for the duration of his career. He was elected and served as city attorney before serving as 18th Judicial District Judge from 1975 to 1989, the first person to hold that position.

He was a member of the local Elks Lodge #438, serving as Exalted Ruler from 1966 to 1968, and of Stephen B. Whalen American Legion Post #27, and was a member of Connersville Christian Church.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Sally Glasscock Fitzgerald; his son, Mark Alan Fitzgerald; a daughter, Gina Renee Fitzgerald; brothers, Donald Lee Fitzgerald and Gerald Taylor Fitzgerald; and a sister, Obra Fitzgerald Buttry.

Survivors include: his daughters, Carol (Michael) Harney and Kelly (Charles) Sallengs, both of Cynthiana; eight grandchildren, Jesse (Angie) Withers, Winchester, Andrea (Bruce) Bennett, Nicholasville, Rachel (Danny) Ravencraft, Georgetown, Sarah Fitzgerald, Lexington, Alexander (Elise) Fitzgerald, Frankfort, and Kaleb (Tori) Sallengs, Katelyn Sallengs and Kirsten Sallengs, all of Cynthiana; six great-grandchildren, Wesley Ravencraft, Kyleigh Withers, BJ Bennett, Joshua Bennett, Wyatt Ravencraft and SallyKate Ravencraft; and two brothers, CJ (Bettie) Fitzgerald and William Fitzgerald, both of Florida.

Funeral services will be Friday, May 16 at 1 p.m. at Ware Funeral Home, conducted by Warren French. Visitation is from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Burial will be in Battle Grove Cemetery.

Hampton, Stephens square off in sheriff's race

By BECKY BARNES, EDITOR, AND JOSH SHEPHERD, NEWS WRITER
Question #1: Please give us a brief biography and professional background, emphasizing your qualifications for this position and why you want to be (remain) Sheriff.

Shain Stephens: This is the second time that Stephens is running for Harrison County Sheriff. He was encouraged to run by the strong showing he had in the 2010 campaign, he said.

Stephens has been married to his wife, Judy, for 25 years. He has three children.

He is a lifelong resident of Harrison County and has served over two decades as a law enforcement officer.

His service includes several years as member of the Commercial Vehicle Enforcement, the Kentucky State Police in Dry Ridge and as a member of the Paris Police Department where he has risen to the rank of lieutenant.

He has no issue at all with the current administration of the Harrison County Sheriff's department or its deputies. He has worked with them all and has established a good working relationship with them.

Stephens does feel that he can bring some fresh ideas and perspectives to the sheriff's office, which is a key reason that he seeks the office.

Bruce Hampton: Hampton has been Harrison County's sheriff for 24 years and has a total of 39 years in law enforcement. He was a Cynthiana police officer for 15 years.

He and his wife Roseanne Gasser Hampton, have two daughters and one son.

He said there are now nine deputies who serve in his office: two detectives, one of which investigates crime and drugs as well as seeks and writes grants; the other serves on a drug task force working with other agencies; two accident reconstruction specialists; and two who are fluent in Spanish.

"A sheriff wears many hats," Hampton said, noting that he is a tax collector of $8 million each year and dealing with $800,000 in fines.

"We've never been short a penny in 24 years," Hampton said.

Question #2: What is Harrison County's greatest crime problem and how do you plan to address that problem?

Hampton: At this point, heroin is the biggest problem, Hampton said.

"We have two guys out trying to buy drugs constantly," he said.

He added that in many cases the punishment doesn't fit the crime. He said addicts need to have some type of rehab program to help them break away from their addictions.

Drug court has been working well, Hampton said.

"Obviously jail is not the proper place for all addicts," he said.

In his 30-second rebuttal, Hampton acknowledged that drugs have created other problems.

"If we can slow down the drug problem, we slow down thefts and burglaries," Hampton said.

Stephens: Trafficking in prescription medication continues to be a constant criminal problem in Harrison and surrounding counties.

Heroin is the current drug of abuse among addicts because it is cheaper than buying prescription drugs, but in terms of criminal drug trafficking, there is more money to be made selling $30 pain pills than grams of heroin, Stephens said.

The drug problem also feeds an increase in home break-ins and theft, he said.

"In the vast majority of theft cases, one can trace it back to the drug problem," Stephens said.

Question #3: If elected (re-elected) which area of service would receive the majority of your attention and how would you hold yourself and your office accountable.

Stephens: The Harrison County Sheriff's deputies are all knowledgeable about law enforcement, he said. But he feels that there are tweaks he can make to improve the efficiency of office operations.

He'd not skimp on law enforcement, he said. But the sheriff's office also has to carry out a variety of other job duties, he said. He'd like to review office procedures and see if there are opportunities to reduce costs, he said.

Furthermore, the sheriff and deputies must always be aware of public perception and the image the office projects.

"We are always being watched and judged by the public," Stephens said. The office must always be thought of as operating at a high level.

Following his initial statement, Stephens added that he plans to share shifts with deputies and take night shifts on occasion.

Hampton: Just as we're doing our job now, Hampton said.

He reiterated that the sheriff's department has many roles in the county.

"We don't just patrol; we don't just work accidents," Hampton said. Someone is on call at all times.

He said his office is also responsible for vehicle inspections, for providing a bailiff in district and circuit courts, transporting out-of-state prisoners and transporting defendants to psychological evaluations prior to trials.

"Everything gets 100 percent," he said.

In his rebuttal, Hampton said the sheriff needs to be available during the day. He added that he doesn't want or need to be sneaking up on deputies to see if they are doing their jobs.

Question #4: As the chief administrator of your office, how would you control cost and reduce the need for additional taxes?

Hampton: It's controlled by the office running on a shoe-string, he said.

He said his office is constantly looking for grants. The best ones are free, that don't require any local match.

He said that his office has always been watchful of spending.

Sometimes the office has to beg, borrow or go back to the fiscal court for more funding.

"Our fiscal court has been very good to us," Hampton said.

Stephens: When it comes to law enforcement, Stephens said there are certain things deputies must have to be efficient officers.

He cited the use of on-board data systems and recording equipment used to research perpetrators and conduct on-the-spot background checks.

There is always a list of needs and wants when it comes to the Sheriff's office, he said. However, there are ways to obtain them without going to the local taxpayer for help.

His office would be diligent in finding appropriate state and federal grants to help fund certain items. He would also find new efficiencies that would reduce costs and save money.

Question #5: In Colorado, sheriffs have refused to implement state-enacted gun control laws. What would be your position if such laws were enacted in Kentucky?

Stephens: The primary duty of a Sheriff is to uphold the laws of the Commonwealth, Stephens said. It is the obligation of the office, he said.

However, when it comes to gun control laws, responsible gun owners who abide by procedures are not the problem, he said. They obey the laws.

Criminals ignore every gun law and regulation. Passing more legislation, he said, is doing nothing to control or reduce crimes perpetrated by criminals using guns.

In his rebuttal statement, Stephens said in the grand scheme of things, should a gun control measure pass he objects, too, he'd have "to cross that bridge when it comes."

Stephens concluded his remarks with an expression of appreciation to the people attending the event and urged voters to support his bid for office.

Hampton: "That's a tough question," said Hampton, who acknowledged his regard for guns.

"I'm a gun nut," Hampton said.

He explained that he was one of the state's sheriffs who stood behind the state's carry and conceal law when it came up for consideration.

"I would have to research it very closely before I could say I was going to take their guns," he said. "They probably aren't going to like it and may show me what the other end of the gun looks like."

In his final 30 seconds, Hampton said he has been in the officer for 24 years and asked that he be re-elected to keep honesty and integrity in the office.

"Vote for Bruce Hampton and thank you for your support."

Barnett, Peak and Moses go head to head in bid for Harrison County judge-executive

By JOSH SHEPHERD, NEWS WRITER
Question #1: Please give us a brief biography and professional background, emphasizing your qualifications for this position and why you want to be (continue to be) Judge-Executive.

Alex Barnett (incumbent): After thanking the tea party for hosting the candidate's forum, Barnett said that he grew up knowing just about everyone in his Harrison County home.

When he was asked to describe himself, he said he struggled with an appropriate description. The best he can say is that he was a native, Ivy-league-educated farm boy who wants to remain on the farm.

Before going to college at Cornell University in New York, where he earned his degree in farm management and finance, Barnett's first love was working with his father, G. Kenton Barnett, on the family farm.

"Managing budgets and farming are the two things I enjoy doing. My father was the agronomist and I was the economist and we worked well together," Barnett said.

He and his wife, Michelle, have been married 22 years and they have two children, Brandon and Ally.

and raised in Harrison County. He was studying at the University of Kentucky when, as he said, "I won the draft lottery."

He signed up with the Navy and served with special operations in the South Pacific and off the coast of Vietnam.

Returning to the states, Peak farmed with his father and then was approached by Sen. Wendell Ford's office to serve on a federal board, to which he remained until after the 1997 "dynamic" flood.

Peak is seeking to return to the office he previously held.

"I still have a lot of things I need to do," Peak said of unfinished projects that were started during his tenure, such as the business park, Flat Run Veterans' Park and securing the E911 system funding.

Steve Moses: Now serving as Cynthiana's mayor, Moses said he was also born and raised in Harrison County.

He was drafted to Vietnam and served 1969-1970. During that time he earned the bronze star and purple heart.

Moses worked with the Department of Transportation for 27 years and has been retired for 17 years. He has also farmed in Harrison County for 54 years and served as a volunteer for 25 years.

He is a 60-year member of Mt. Hope United Methodist Church.

In addition to serving as mayor of Cynthiana, Moses also served as magistrate for District 2 on the Harrison County Fiscal Court.

He said he has been able to secure grants that allowed for greenhouses to be placed in each of the elementary schools in the county, and added playground equipment to the park.

"Our county needs aggressive leadership," Moses said.

Question #2 - What is the single most important function of this office?

Peak: To be good listeners to all of the people who come into the office or call the office is one of the most important parts. Also, it is important to be a good advisor.

Peak said that from his eight years of experience in the office, he determined that it was the county judge's duty to perform the wishes of the citizenship.

"The squeaky wheel gets the oil," Peak said.

Moses: "We need to keep Harrison County from falling any further behind," Moses said.

He added that getting more jobs into the county was also a high priority.

"No jobs means higher taxes," Moses said. "We have to support our businesses and entrepreneurs and increase the building of new homes."

He noted that only 17 building permits were issued in all of last year.

"We need to have 50," Moses said.

"We have to be aggressive to move forward," he said.

Moses added that as mayor he has had an open door policy where constituents can contact him at anytime.

Barnett: The judge-executive's job is to help steer Harrison County in a positive direction, Barnett said. The fiscal court is composed of nine elected members, eight magistrates and a judge-executive, who are tasked with the job of moving this county forward, Barnett said.

"The fiscal court is not a one-person show. It's all of us working together," Barnett said, citing his creation of a committee system with magistrates serving as chairs to oversee various county operations.

"I talk to people and I have a record of conservative leadership as the judge-executive in which we have not had to raise taxes, but managed with what we had," Barnett said.

During his rebuttal period, Barnett responded to criticism from opponent Dean Peak that the court's committee system slowed progress and allowed the judge-executive to duck criticism or voice personal leadership or vision.

Barnett disagreed with the assertion that the magistrates held things up. In fact, he felt that the magistrates moved the county forward.

Question #3: If elected (re-elected) which area of service would receive the majority of your attention and how would you hold yourself and your staff accountable?

Moses: "As I see it, it's not one specific area," said Moses.

He said jobs, roads and recruiting business are areas of concern.

Moses said he would use his 27 years of experience in dealing with roads to help create a better road system for Harrison County.

"It's time we move forward into the 21st century and out of the 1960s," he said, adding that recruiting industry professionals, including those for Harrison Memorial Hospital to help it continue to provide full-service care.

He also noted that any behavior by county employees that reflects poorly on the county will not be tolerated.

During rebuttal, Moses' said county roads are not as good as they should be.

"Cold-patch roads don't stay," he said.

Barnett: Barnett took the opportunity with this question to address some of the accomplishments of his administration.

In terms of public complaints, when he took office the most vocal complaints concerned the [Flora Shropshire] animal shelter.

The shelter has improved to 80 percent or more of the animals at the shelter find good homes. That statistic is a marked improvement over conditions before he took over when the majority were euthanized, he said.

The county road system was another sore spot with voters. But at this stage in his term, every road has been re-surfaced, he said. Some lesser traveled roads have received a "chip seal" cover rather than asphalt, which is cheaper and, according to Barnett, provides better traction to vehicles in the winter time.

Barnett said that upon re-election, the county has to turn its attention to economic development in Harrison County.

Responding to criticism from Peak and Cynthiana Mayor Steve Moses about seven county vehicles reportedly being out of commission at one time during the winter, Barnett denied there were ever that many in need of repair at one time.

He did acknowledge that the severe winter did age many county vehicles this year. But there has been two new dump truck purchased and three used vehicles at $20,000 rather than buying new ones at $90,000.

Peak: The biggest issue is jobs, or the lack thereof, said Peak.

Roads are the most important, he said, adding that during his administration, the court tried to purchase a new dump truck each year to maintain the integrity of the fleet.

"The current administration has not bought one in eight years," Peak said. "We need to replace equipment as it becomes necessary."

In his 30-second rebuttal to Barnett's comments that there was never a time that seven trucks were not in operation at the same time, Peak advised that there was an apparent difference in opinion of what he was told by the county road supervisor.

Question #4 - What steps would you take to: retain new business, help Harrison County grow and provide more employment?

Barnett: As a seated member of the Cynthiana-Harrison County Economic Development Authority, Barnett said that he will work with the CEOs of Harrison County's major manufacturers, medium and small businesses.

In recent years, Barnett said every Harrison County manufacturer has added new jobs.

Family court judge

would like to see increases in case specialists on the family court staff to do continuous case reviews and make alterations as needed to relieve the backlog on the courts.

Question #5: What innovative ideas would you bring to the Family Court System.

Fryman: In her experience, Fryman said that she would like to see this district implement "The Sunflower Kids" program, which is popular in Lexington.

The program is a supervised visitation program organized under guidelines of the Office on Violence Against Women.

She would also like to see development of a truancy court.

Arnold: In addition to support of truancy courts as well, Arnold also advocated for increases in pre-trial conferences as an effective method for decreasing docket backloads.

He also suggested staggering court schedules to reduce wait times on dockets.

Paul: Judge Paul advocated for a return of family drug courts.

In her experience, the program made a difference and helped. Unfortunately, when funding dried up, the courts came to an end.

She also expressed a desire for the teen court idea to be applied in all four counties in her area.

Tedder: Tedder advocated for a review of child support enforcement procedures.

As an attorney in this area of the state, where unemployment rates are severe, those who owe child support are constantly being asked to appear in court to make their payments.

Such demands for personal appearances can affect a person's employment if they are constantly asking for time off to appear in court.

Tedder is in favor of a process that monitors and enforces child support payments, but does not launch investigations unless support payments are missed.

"It's at the moment when one payment is missed for more aggressive enforcement procedures," Tedder said. But if support payments are being maintained over a period of time, then it reduces the necessity of having an individual always report in, he said.

At the conclusion of the debate for Family Court Judge, all four candidates expressed their appreciation to the Tea Party for hosting the event and to the dozens of people who came out to listen.

Woman's Club of Harrison County meets for May luncheon

The Woman's Club of Harrison County met on Friday, May 9 for their monthly luncheon. Anna Ruth McLoney, club president, welcomed members and guests and led everyone in the Pledge of Allegiance.

The luncheon was catered by Layne Tussey. Katherine Pettey offered the blessing. Pettey also presented spiritual values. She chose the story of Mary and Martha (Luke 10:38-42) as the inspiration for her message.

Bonnie Teater introduced musical guest, Ben Clifford. Clifford was accompanied by Brad Whalen who played the guitar.

Cheryl Case introduced guest speaker Larry Drake and his wife Karen. Drake is a volunteer at the National Underground Railroad Freedom Center located in Cincinnati, Ohio. The museum is located on the banks of the Ohio River and opened to the public in August of 2004.

Thousands of slaves escaped to freedom by crossing the Ohio River and entering the city, making Cincinnati the appropriate location for the center. The museum's principal artifact is a 21 by 30 foot, two-story log slave pen built in 1830. To date, it is the only known surviving rural slave jail, previously used to house slaves prior to their being shipped to auction. The structure was moved to the museum from a farm in Mason County, Ky. The center also honors individuals of the past, present and future who continue the struggle to end human slavery and secure freedom for all people. For more information visit www.freedomcenter.org.

Drake graduated from the Naval Academy and served on a nuclear submarine. After leaving the service, he graduated from law school and worked as a general counsel. He was also an entrepreneur and started several businesses in Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee. After he retired, the Drakes moved to Cincinnati to be close to their children and grandchildren. He is an avid student of the history and politics of the American Civil War which led him to volunteer at the Freedom Center.

The monthly business meeting followed the program. Kaye McCauley read the minutes from the April meeting and Virgie Wells submitted the treasurer's report. McLoney read a note of thanks and appreciation from Dorothy Slade. The Woman's Club presented Slade with a gift in recognition of her contribution to the Harrison County Historical Society.

In June, 2013, the Executive Committee of the Woman's Club agreed to establish a scholarship fund. Each year a scholarship will be awarded to a female student from Harrison County High School. The student must be enrolled at Maysville Community College, Cynthiana campus for the upcoming semester. The recipient of the scholarship will be announced during the high school awards program in early June.

In September of 2013, the Woman's Club moved their monthly luncheon and meeting site to the community room at Hospice of the Bluegrass. As an expression of our gratitude for allowing us to meet at their facility, the Woman's Club made a donation to Hospice of the Bluegrass. McLoney presented the check to Kathy Harris.

The Woman's Club is adjourned for the summer. Monthly luncheons will resume in September.

JESSICA L. BROWN AND DAVID S. BARNES

Mr. and Mrs. Randy Brown of Cynthiana, Ky., announce the engagement of their daughter, Jessica LaRae Brown, to David Stewart Barnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Barnes of Berry, Ky.

Brown is a 2010 graduate of Harrison County High School and a 2014 graduate of the University of Kentucky with a bachelor's degree in Plant and Soil Science with an emphasis in Horticulture. She will be employed at the Cooperative Extension Service in Harrison County as the County Agent for Horticulture starting in July.

Barnes is a 2009 graduate of Harrison County High School and a 2011 graduate of Bluegrass Community and Technical College with an Associates of Science degree. He is self-employed as a full-time farmer in Berry, where he raises tobacco, corn, soybeans and cattle.

Brown and Barnes are members of Unity Christian Church where the wedding will take place outdoors at the amphitheater on Saturday, June 14, 2014 at 4:30 in the afternoon. All family and friends are invited to attend. Reception to follow at Northside Elementary School.

Unity Christian Church is located at 5848 Ky. Hwy. 36 West, Cynthiana, Ky.

Homemaker News

The Falmouth Road Homemakers met for their monthly meeting on Wednesday, May 7 with 13 members present and guest Linda Moore. The Falmouth Road Homemaker group is one of the original founding Homemaker groups in Harrison County. There are currently 16 members. We meet on the first Wednesday of each month from September through May. We are always looking for new members and welcome the opportunity to be gracious hosts. Come check us out.

If work or life commitments prevent you from attending in person, you can still receive a monthly newsletter and lesson by becoming a mail box member. Contact the Extension Office at 234-5510 for further details on our homemaker group as well as others in Harrison County or for details on how to become a mailbox member.

The month of May is a special delight to homemakers because of Homemaker Community Day. A chance to get out and purchase homemade items such as cakes, cookies, and pies or landscape on a budget with cuttings, bulbs, and plants selected from fellow homemaker yards. For the vegetable lover, there are a wide variety of tomatoes, peppers, and more to be purchased.

In July, all Harrison County Homemaker groups will be assisting with the annual Harrison County Fair. Homemakers will volunteer countless hours to ensure fairgoers have an opportunity to get some tasty fair food, staff homemaker hall, and assist in any matter necessary to make the fair a success.

Lessons for the coming year have been planned, hosts and speakers have volunteered, and all that is necessary for a successful 2014-2015 Homemaker season is the participation of its valued members and the addition of some new and smiling faces.

Lessons for the next year are: Gardening, Let's Have a Spa Day, Vitamins and Supplements, Preparing for Later Life, Super Foods for a Super You, Managing Creepy Crawlies, Short and Sweet, and Home Energy Management. Each month a homemaker opens their home to their fellow homemakers for a day of discussion of homemaker business, a prayer, a homecooked meal, and an afternoon of learning about relevant topics and fellowshiping with one another.

We would love to have you become a part of a wonderful group of ladies and gentlemen that give back to the community. Harrison County Homemakers is also on Facebook. Check us out, like us, and find out what we are up to and how your skills can help the community.

Fiscal court approves $60,000 for welding lab project

By JOSH SHEPHERD, NEWS WRITER

The Harrison County Fiscal Court approved the release of $60,000 in budgeted money to help fund the Welding Lab project.

Barnett also informed magistrates that plans for the welding lab changed from a vision of a separate building at the industrial park to extensive renovations at the existing Harrison County Area Technology Center.

At the regular meeting of the fiscal court Tuesday evening, Harrison County Judge Executive Alex Barnett said that he and Magistrate Frank Henson attended a meeting of all the organizations involved in the Welding Lab project.

The Welding Lab was a project launched by the Cynthiana - Harrison County Economic Development Authority to enhance technical education and specialized job training in the region.

The project would directly benefit students being trained for careers in commercial and industrial welding at the Harrison County Area Technology Center (ATC) as well as students enrolled in the Licking Valley Campus of the Maysville Community and Technical College system (LVC).

In addition to the EDA, LVC, and Harrison School System, the project also received partnership support from the Harrison County Fiscal Court, Cynthiana City Commission and the Bluegrass Area Development District (BGADD).

The original plan called for the construction of a building in the industrial park dedicated to welding and other areas of technical education and job training.

However, those plans changed when Bruce Florence, director of LVC, received news that the college was eligible for a $200,000 equipment grant from the Derr Foundation.

The new proposal, Barnett said, would turn the money each partner pledged to help with building costs toward renovation of the existing welding facilities at the ATC. Among the factors influencing the change in plans were financial constraints of the project as well as technical issues such as student transportation to the new building.

Plus, the change in plans would result in a quicker turnaround of the project and a state-of-the-art training and educational facility located on the area's academic campus.

Money for the project had already been worked into the fiscal court's current budget.

Barnett's recommendation to release the money was approved unanimously by the magistrates.

In other business: •Henson reported that he had met with Rebecca McCauley of Project Playground. All plans were finalized and the playground equipment for children under age 5 will be installed at Flat Run Veterans Park by June.

•The magistrates approved the 2013 Sheriff Tax Settlement.

•Magistrate Jeff Brunker reported that a Harrison County Boy Scout troop performed a community service by painting the dog kennels at the Flora Shropshire Animal Shelter.

He also said that a young girl held a birthday party at the animal shelter. Instead of gifts, kids were asked to bring food and supplies to help the shelter.

Brunker noted that the shelter stipulated all children attending the birthday party sign a release as a precaution. Nevertheless, the shelter appreciated the show of support from the community.

Judge's

One of the principal goals of the EDA has been to aggressively pay down the debt of the industrial park. The debt was over $800,000 when Barnett took office. Last month, Barnett said the EDA had got the debt down under $200,000.

"I believe the overall economy is turning around," Barnett said. Hopefully, Harrison's economy will go along with it, he said.

Peak: It will take meetings with CEOs of Harrison County's industry and small and large businesses to determine their needs.

He noted that Harrison Memorial Hospital is one of the county's largest employers.

He said Harrison County needs to do what it can to maintain a strong workforce for these companies.

He said there are monthly and annual meetings of the Cabinet for Economic Development that no one is attending.

"It's the responsibility of the mayor and the judge to see who's looking," Peak said.

Moses: There are great resources in the state and the community, Moses said.

He said the city has been able to cut payroll tax and offer some tax incentives.

"It's time for the county to step up and do a little more," Moses said.

He said that he is being asked what needs to be done to start a new business.

"We need more tax incentives," Moses said.

He said there is also a need for more spec buildings.

Question #5 - Ohio and many other states have constitutional amendments that require a majority vote of the people in order to raise any tax or levy. If elected (re-elected) would you support and actively lobby for such an amendment?

Peak: Yes, Peak said, he would support such an amendment.

He said a good example of the need for such a vote would be with the debated E911 system.

"It's one of the best systems in the state and maybe the United States," Peak said, explaining that what makes it work is that it is operated locally by people who know the city and county.

"Dry Ridge doesn't know the intricacies of our city and county," Peak said.

In his conclusion, Peak said he would like to implement weekly meetings between Cynthiana's mayor and the county judge.

"We need to be on the same page all the time," Peak stressed.

He said money is at the heart of everything. He said he has no hesitancy about going to Washington or Frankfort.

"When you go to Frankfort or Washington you have to talk the talk and walk the walk," he said.

Moses: "There's a lot of things that were started that should have been left up to the people," Moses said, adding that he would probably favor such an amendment.

He also touched on the E911 system. "It takes a lot of money to run that show," he said. "It's no telling how many lives have been saved."

Being what he called "a Constitutional person," Moses said he would support what was good for the people.

In conclusion, Moses said, "If you want something done, vote for Steve Moses, 'cause I know what I'm doing. We're going to grow and grow and grow."

Barnett: "Absolutely," Barnett said, in full agreement with his fellow competitors.

"I am not a tax person," he said. Instead, he titled himself as an old-fashioned politician who believes counties should get by on what they have.

He did voice his support, instead, for the idea of a local option sales tax. If there is an idea or project which needs funding, he believes in presenting this idea to the people.

"If they like it, we create the means to levy a tax to only fund that project. When the funds are raised, the tax goes away," Barnett said.

Barnett did say that he turned down a Tea Party suggestion that he sign a no-tax pledge.

His concern is on the county maintaining a localized 911 dispatching service.

The primary funding resource for local 911 service, landline phones, is going away, he said.

But if there is a county interest in keeping this service local, Cynthiana and Harrison County are going to have to find resources to maintain it from somewhere, he concluded.

national hospital week ■ may 11 - 17, 2014

It's not always about the medications, the lab results or the surgical technique. Sometimes, it's simply about the healing touch and the ability to listen. That's what our nearly 350 healthcare professionals at Harrison Memorial Hospital bring to our patients. Sure, we have the credentials to back up our work. But we'll never lose sight of the little things that matter when it comes to caring for our friends and neighbors -- this National Hospital week -- and every week thereafter.

The UK air medical service was called in to help provide emergency medical care to Floyd Rice, who was injured after his truck collided with another truck at the intersection of KY 36 and Lafferty Pike. Fortunately, after an examination at UK Chandler Medical Center, it was determined his injuries weren't life-threatening and he was released to go home that evening.

Harrison man recovers from wreck on KY 36

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

The University of Kentucky air medical service was called in to transport a Harrison County man who suffered several injuries, including an apparent concussion, following a collision between trucks at the intersection of KY 36 and Lafferty Pike at 3 p.m. Thursday afternoon.

Fortunately, after an examination of his injuries, Floyd Rice, 48, of Junction Pike was treated and released from the UK Chandler Medical Center the same evening.

At the Harrison County Sheriff's Office on Friday, Rice said he was very sore and stiff, but otherwise appeared to be fine.

But at the accident scene on Thursday, Rice's condition appeared to be a bit more serious.

According to an accident report filed by Deputy Sheriff Joe Daniel, Rice was heading westbound on KY 36 in a black Ford Ranger when Robert Watson, in a white Ford F250, pulled out into the middle of the highway from Lafferty Pike.

Rice slammed on his brakes, leaving a black skid mark measuring almost 25 feet, before slamming into Watson's driver's side door near the left hand side of the road.

Both cars came to rest in a culvert along a bank of KY 36. Witnesses of the accident said that the vehicle on Lafferty Pike did not completely stop at the intersection, the report said.

Watson reported that he did not see Rice's vehicle until he was in the middle of KY 36.

When Daniel arrived at the scene, he observed Watson standing beside his truck. The deputy saw Floyd lying in the grass in front of his truck. Floyd was conscious with lacerations to his face.

Brown's Ambulance service called in air medical transport from the University of Kentucky to land on the top of a hill near the accident scene. Floyd was transferred to the helicopter to be transported to UK hospital.

To date, no charges have been filed in connection with the accident.

H.O.P.E. - He Offers Peace Eternally

Since moving here, my wife and I have been amazed at the number of active 80 and 90 year olds in the county.

We are in awe of their spryness and ability to continue living on their own terms. I've had the pleasure of making friends and ministering to a couple in their mid-90s who still lived on their own until his recent passing.

This article began as a Facebook post when I heard that a friend, only 55 years young had a second stroke. He struggled for three days before surrendering his battle. I am thankful that Lee staked his eternity on the foundation of Jesus Christ.

His loss reminded me of a friend's granddaughter who has fought valiantly against cancer, but whose doctors have resigned to the inevitable, and 20-month-old Claire will be loved by her parents and grandparents until she succumbs.

I don't know Claire's parents, but I know of her grandparent's conviction in Jesus Christ. While they will feel the loss, wonder why the time was way too short, they will not question or blame God, only look forward to the day when they will see Claire for eternity.

When is death ever appropriate? Is there a right time or age, a measure of accomplishment or success? Are our days numbered? Is there more to life than the rat race I am losing?

Someone determined there are only two certainties in life: death and taxes.

I know what taxes are doing to me, I complain about working til mid-April to give the governments their due, but we "give to Caesar what is Caesar's" and move on.

Although I am saddened by Lee's loss and the inevitable facing Claire, I am not left wondering what it is all about.

Paul encouraged the church, "we don't want you ... to grieve like the rest of men, who have no hope." (I Thessalonians 4:13). Because of God's love and Jesus' devotion, those who claim Jesus as Lord have hope; a hope that extends beyond both the grave, and the struggles and challenges of this life, which leads me to another acronym, H.O.P.E. – Hold Onto Prayer Everyday.

Are you "delight worthy?"

Those who know me know I'm a front-row pew sitter.

My pastor used to think I sit there because I want to hang on his every word until I told him that it's because I'm short, otherwise I'd head for the back row.

The problem with sitting in the front row is that when you're smack in the pastor's line of vision it's difficult to slink down in your seat to hide from God. As everyone knows, pastors have a direct hotline to God. Whenever someone in the congregation is straying, God whispers that person's name in the pastor's ear so he can tailor his sermon to make the strayer squirm.

I remember one sermon when my pastor asked, "How many of you are satisfied with your level of spiritual maturity?"

Squirm, squirm.

"In light of that, how do you think God feels about you? Disappointed? Mixed feelings?" he asked.

I knew the correct answer was "delighted," but at that moment I didn't feel at all "delight worthy." Actually, at that moment, I had been daydreaming about a shirt that was at home in a dye bath that I was hoping to get a certain shade of aquamarine to match pants that I had found on sale.

On top of that, I hadn't touched my Bible in weeks other than to move it out of the way of my coffee cup. Plus, I had been watching a lot of TV, and not news or educational TV, but the junky stuff that rots your brain and your soul — and I couldn't wait to get home from church to watch the latest episode of "Who the (Bleep) Did I Marry?"

It seems that I find myself returning to this same place again and again.

I want God to be delighted in me, I want to be satisfied with my level of spiritual maturity — I want to actually be spiritually mature.

Nancy Kennedy
Columnist

GRACE NOTES

And I want new shoes. And pie.

So, with all these competing thoughts in my head, I sat there in my front row pew spot in the pastor's direct line of vision, squirming because I knew God was pointing me out, which made me try even harder to look as holy and sanctified on the outside as I could while on the inside trying to drum up God's favor, all the while berating myself for not having my Bible with me so I could open it and at least pretend I was an object of God's delight.

Honestly, sometimes it's exhausting being me.

My pastor had asked, "How do you think God feels about you?"

At that moment, and many moments since then, I figured he felt disgusted. As proof, just a few days before he had sent a plague upon me: an itchy rash on my chin and cheeks after trying a new "peach tree and coconut" facial scrub. Could locusts and gnats be far behind?

A long time ago, the Apostle Paul scolded the Galatians, accusing them of having a hex put on them. They had been gung ho believers in "grace alone by faith alone in Christ alone" until they started forgetting that what made them eligible for God's delight was not what they did or did not do. It was not the rules they kept or the traditions they performed, but that God delights in his own simply because they trust in his Son.

Paul wrote: "How did your new life begin? Was it by working your heads off to please God? Or was it by responding to God's Message to you? Are you going to continue this craziness? For only crazy people would think they could complete by their own efforts what was begun by God. If you weren't smart enough or strong enough to begin it, how do you suppose you could perfect it?" (Galatians 3:2-4 The Message)

That passage always makes me laugh and always brings me back to the pastor's question: How does God feel about me?

If it's as we sing: "God has smiled on me; he has set me free. God has smiled on me; he's been good to me," then he delights in me, a daydreaming, junky-TV-watching, Bible-neglecting, spiritual slug.

He delights in me. Not my sin, of course, but because of Jesus, he smiles on me. He smiles on you, too.

Lefty Jordan Riley got the win for the Thorobreds on senior night Monday against Franklin County.

Breds breeze in Senior Night tilt, edge Campbell County 3-2 on Tuesday

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

Harrison County made Senior Night successful Monday with a 10-3 defeat of Franklin County on the Hilltop.

The evening began with the recognition of six seniors, five players and one stat girl. Stat girl Audrey Ramsey joined senior players Nolan Brossart, John King, Christian Persinger, Jordan Riley and Zach Royce on the field for the pregame ceremony and after the game for a reception.

Franklin County and Harrison County had matched up only 11 days ago on the Flyers' field with Franklin County winning by a 6-2 score.

Monday's game was similar to the first one except the Thorobreds were the ones scoring early to put the game out of reach.

On May 1, Franklin County scored all six of its runs in the first inning and Monday night Harrison County scored three in the first and four in the second to take the big lead.

Coach Mac Whitaker started his five seniors and each of them played a role in the early run production.

Riley was the starting and winning pitcher for the Thorobreds, pitching a complete game. He allowed seven hits, striking out five and walking three.

Harrison County committed three errors behind Riley, two that led to runs being scored.

The first inning saw the Flyers get back-to-back singles by center fielder Rylan Rowe and Quenton Brownlee.

Rowe advanced to third on a ground out and then scored on an errant throw on a pick off move.

Riley was able to strike out the next two batters stranding Brownlee and giving the Flyers a 1-0 lead after half an inning.

The Thorobreds bounced back as catcher Robbie Stroub led off

Baseball Alumni Association Plans made for Hall of Fame Induction, Legends trip

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

The Cynthiana/Harrison County Baseball Alumni Association has two events coming up in June.

On Saturday, June 14, a trip is planned for Alumni Association members and guests to a Legends game in Lexington with game time at 7:05 p.m.

Each person provides their own transportation for the trip, which will feature seats on the third base line and group recognition. Ticket cost is $9 each.

They are available from any Alumni Association board member. They are Terry Jones, Jim Swinford, Jim Fuller, Ron England, Buddy Renaker and Larry Gossett. There will be enough tickets reserved for the first 50-plus extra tickets available if more wish to attend.

The second Hall of Fame Class of the Cynthiana/Harrison County Alumni Association has been elected and will be installed on Saturday, June 28, at the Cynthiana Elks Lodge.

The evening will begin with fellowship at 5 p.m.

Fillies split four games, host Lexington Catholic Friday

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

The Harrison County Fillies lost to Henry Clay Thursday, 11-6, in nine innings and then went on the road Friday, Monday and Tuesday to win two of three.

The Henry Clay game was tight throughout with the two teams trading the lead until the second extra inning.

The Lady Blue Devils (14-8) rallied with five runs for the win.

The Fillies took an early lead facing Somerset when Sydney Motell singled with two outs in the first, Courtney Newsom doubled and Macy Martin singled to drive in Motell for a 1-0 lead after one inning.

Somerset tied it up in the top of the fourth when they scored without the benefit of a base hit.

Fillies' starter and winning pitcher Bailey Conley temporarily lost her control and hit two batters and walked another. The Lady Jumpers scored on a fielder's choice.

Harrison County came right back in the bottom of the fourth and scored twice to take the lead for good.

Newsom singled to start the inning and two outs later Haley Powers hit a home run to score the two runs.

Shelby Ishmael and Powers hit back-to-back doubles in the sixth for the fourth and final run in the 4-1 Fillies win. Somerset fell to 17-12 with the loss.

Monday the Fillies were in Pendleton County for a brief visit as they defeated the Lady Cats 21-0 in three innings.

Jami Davis struck out eight of the 10 batters that she faced as only a lead off single by shortstop Sarah Turner prevented a three-inning perfect game.

The Fillies had 13 hits and drew 15 walks in the game. Pendleton County's record for the season is 4-18 after the loss while the Fillies improved to 16-10-1.

Tuesday night in Brooksville, the Fillies could not field the Breds third, Fillies fourth in region track meet

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

The weather Saturday mirrored the 2014 season as the Region 4, Class AA track meet was delayed for 90 minutes due to rain and lightning. Thanks to hard work of the coaches and volunteers, a quality event was staged.

Highlands defeated defending champion Lexington Catholic in the girls' meet by a narrow 154-to-147 margin. Western Hills had 84 points to finish third follow closely by Harrison County with 80 points.

Franklin County, Scott, Holmes, Pendleton County and Bourbon County also competed though neither the Lady Cats nor Lady Colonels scored.

Kassidy Cook was the meet's most prolific scorer as she won three events and finished third in another. She won the long jump with a jump of 16 feet, 6 inches, the high jump with a leap of 4 feet, 11 inches and the 110M hurdles in a quick :15.59. Her 33-foot, 6-inch leap in the triple jump was good enough for third place.

Caylin Mattox was second in the 110M hurdles and third in the 300M hurdles while also running a leg in the 400M relay and the 800M relay. Both of these relay teams finished second with flawless baton exchanges.

The 400M relay team consisted of Mia Lail, Haley Carr, Mattox and Hannah Thomas who ran the race in :54.61.

The 800M relay team had a season's best time of 1:51.90 with the same four girls running the relay.

The 3200M relay finished fourth with Kayla Joy, Amelia Bolin, Tarah Martin and Mary Levi running the distance in 11:40.66. Levi was also fifth in the 800M run.

The 1600M relay team ran a season's best time of 4:37.24 to finish fourth. This relay team was made up of Martin, Bolin, Levi and Thomas.

Haley Carr was fifth in the 300M hurdles and Mia Lail grabbed sixth in both the long jump and the triple jump.

"I am very happy with the girls," said Coach Danny Simpson. "Now we set our sights on the state championships. This will be at UK on May 23 and we know that the first and second place finishers have qualified. We could have more make it to the state meet depending on the times in other region meets. We will not know that until Sunday."

The field events were again the major strength for the Thorobreds as they have been for the majority of this season.

The third place Breds won four of the six field events and finished second in one and third in another.

Covington Catholic unseated Lexington Catholic from the throne of the boys' competition winning by a 125-to-109 margin over Highlands.

Harrison County was third with 95 points and the defending champion Knights were fourth with 81.

The order of finish for the remaining teams was Western Hills, Scott, Holmes, Bourbon County, Pendleton County and Franklin County.

Dominic Walker took first in the discus with a throw of 131 feet, 6 inches and third in the shot put as he hurled the ball 43 feet, 7 inches.

Taylor Bolin vaulted past the field in the pole vault with a 12-foot-6-inch effort.

Jovon Williams leaped 20 feet, 9 ¼ inches to win the long jump and Justin Hunter was fourth.

Hunter won the triple jump with a precision leap of 41 feet, 7 ¼ inches while his brother Jeffrey

Kassidy Cook won first place in long jump at the Class AA, Region 4 track meet Saturday at the Harrison County Athletic Complex. Cook also won the girls' 100M hurdles and the girls' high jump, making her a triple qualifier for next week's state meet.

MIKE'S MINUTE

Sometimes I think I have lived too long

As I have grown older, I have come to realize that many things that other people do and/or say do not suit me. Most of these do not involve sports so I don't say or write much about it because this column is supposed to be about sports.

I began Sunday evening thinking that I was going to write about my trip to the last SEC game of the year for the University of Kentucky baseball Wildcats.

It was a great time with Rick, Ian and the beautiful Cecilia. I was very much impressed with how the university stages the baseball game in a well manicured and cared for stadium with ample free parking and seating.

The game itself was extremely long as we were into the fourth hour when Mother's Day dinner plans called and we had to leave to go meet Patti and Meghan.

In fact, it is 4:27 a.m. Monday and I still do not know who won the game. The Wildcats and Auburn were going into the 10th inning the last we heard.

Long but enjoyable. Once Cecilia started reading the program to us when each batter stepped to the plate, she was happy being there and really got involved in the game.

The rest of us were already involved but when one in a group isn't involved, it is not as enjoyable for the rest, if you know what I mean. But as Forest Gump would say, "That is all that I have to say about that."

I watched the NFL draft for most of the first night and on and off the rest of the two days.

I was interested in the Bengals' draft to see if they were so concerned about Andy Dalton that they would draft a quarterback. They did this in Alabama's A.J. McCarron.

Like nearly everyone, I wanted to see who would be stuck with the Johnny Manziel show.

The Browns selected the Texas A&M quarterback in the 22nd pick of the draft, which then freed the camera that had been on him to do something else and the experts on the ESPN dais to talk about other players.

I also thought that it was interesting that Denver selected Mister Cobble out of Louisville Central and the University of Kentucky.

The Broncos have had much success with other former Wildcats such as Wesley Woodyard, now a Tennessee Titan, Danny Trevathan and Jacob Tamme.

One other note about Cleveland's draft picks and later signings was Lone Oak High School and Troy quarterback Corey Robinson agreeing to a free agent contract with the Browns.

Robinson was Kentucky's Mr.

Football in 2007 and played in the state football playoff game that I was fortunate enough to officiate.

One player that was not ignored even with the entire Manziel circus going on was Michael Sams of Missouri.

Sams, as you may or may not know, is the first openly gay NFL draftee.

There was much speculation as to how much earlier Sams would have been selected had he not "come out." He did not get picked until the seventh round by the St. Louis Rams.

The Rams' head coach Jeff Fisher commented on how happy he was to be part of this historic moment in the NFL.

Sams was the 249th pick of 256 players selected, leading to the speculation since he was the SEC defensive player of the year.

Sams had to know by "coming out" he was risking some teams being hesitant to select him, especially looking back at the fiasco that was, and maybe still is, the Miami Dolphin's locker room.

I would suspect that Thursday, Friday and Saturday's limelight is only the beginning for this player. The media loves to feed on situations that it sees as a great social injustice being committed.

Why else would cameras have been trained on Sams but to catch the congratulatory kiss from his boyfriend?

We will see if the late pick was justified or not as time goes along.

Inappropriate or the new norm? That is all that I have to say about that.

Three HCHS athletes honored

Three Harrison County High School athletes won honors during the last weeks, two in track and one in tennis.

Haley Carr was named Fillies Athlete of the Month for April for her contributions to the Fillies track team. This award is voted on by the female athletes of the school and is presented each month to a deserving senior.

Senior Jacob Markley was selected by the 10th Region tennis coaches to be awarded the Sportsmanship Award for the region. The coaches vote during the 10th Region Tournament.

Senior Taylor Bolin competed in early May in the Tyson Gay Invitational held at Lafayette High School. Bolin, who used a borrowed pole, cleared 12 feet to place second in the pole vault.

The Harrison County track athlete, who won the region meet Saturday with a jump of 12 feet, 6 inches, was competing in the invitational against 3A competition from Louisville and Lexington.

with a single and scored on a King double.

King then advanced to third on Christian Persinger's single and they both moved up when Brossart singled to right.

Luke Slucher then singled in Persinger for a 3-1 Thorobreds advantage after one inning.

Franklin County scored again in the second but the bottom of the inning saw Harrison County widen the gap to an almost insurmountable lead.

Noah Mitchell walked to start the inning and was sacrificed to second by Stroub.

Brandon Case got an infield single and King was hit by a pitch to load the bases.

The next batter, Royce, made an unforgettable senior moment on the next pitch as he lofted a high home run over the center field fence for a grand slam and a 7-2 Harrison County lead.

The game settled down through the middle innings until the top of the sixth when Franklin County got a lead-off double by relief pitcher Blake Redmon.

Redmon had two doubles on the day for Franklin County. Redmon advanced to third on a single by right fielder Michael Clark and then scored another unearned run on another wild pick off throw.

Harrison County picked up three more runs in the bottom of the sixth on five base hits and a couple of Franklin County errors for the final 10-3 win.

The Thorobreds are now 21-11 for the season and Franklin County is 12-21.

Tenth Region rival, Campbell County, rolled onto the Hilltop Tuesday evening to try to halt the Thorobreds four-game winning streak and build some momentum for their own district competition next week.

The last time the two teams faced off was in the 10th Region finals last year where the Breds came away with a 1-0 win and the region championship.

This game was a tight pitcher's dual with sophomore Gus Garrison and Campbell County's Joey Dawn pitching complete games.

Harrison County came out on top 3-2.

Each team scored a run in the first as the Camels struck first, scoring an unearned run.

The Breds struck back with a single run in the bottom of the inning.

The Thorobreds were recipients of a gift run in the first as Stroub opened the stanza reaching first on an error by Campbell County's third baseman and scored on a sacrifice fly to left field.

Two consecutive hit batsmen advanced Stroub to third before he scored on the fly ball by Conner Free.

Both teams were quiet for the next two innings until the fourth when third baseman Joe Kramer hit a home run off Garrison to open the inning. The lefthander settled down and retired the Camels with no further damage but the Thorobreds trailed after the top of the fourth by a 2-1 score.

the bottom of the inning when freshman Luke Slucher led the inning off with a single and advanced to third on Kinsey's double.

Shortstop Brett Persinger made it to first to load the bases on an error by Kramer at third.

Slucher scored on a fielder's choice by Mitchell and the Breds took the lead for good when Stroub singled home Spencer Free, who was running for Kinsey.

The Camels left the bases loaded in the fifth and had only one hit in the last two innings as Garrison came through with the complete game five hitter.

Harrison County gathered seven hits and was aided by four Campbell County errors in the 3-2 victory.

Garrison, besides the five hits, allowed only two walks and left seven Camel base runners stranded on the night.

Catcher Stroub led the Breds with two hits and a run scored for the game.

The Breds record now stands at 22-11 while the Camels fall to 9-16 with the loss.

Harrison County finishes its regular season with a game Thursday at Walton Verona and a home battle with top 20 rated Scott County Friday night.

ball well as they committed four errors in a 7-2 loss to Bracken County. Harrison County had 10 hits to the Lady Bears' four but could not put the hits together to score runs.

Bracken County also played error-free ball to back up the seven strikeouts out performance of senior Emma Conley.

Motell, Davis, Newsom, and Jima Hill each had two hits for the Fillies.

Newsom and Ishmael had RBI doubles to account for the two Harrison County runs. Bracken County with the win goes to 15-11 for the season while the Fillies fell to 16-11-1.

The Fillies are scheduled to host Lexington Catholic (8-20) on Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the final regular season game at Shirley Field.

The Harrison County squad will wrap up the regular season with a round robin tournament in Estill County on Saturday. The Fillies are scheduled to play Western Hills at noon, Madison Central at 2 p.m. and the host school at 6 p.m.

was third, only three feet behind the winning jump.

Mason Ritchie cleared 6 feet, 2 inches to finish second in the high jump as he was way over the winning height of 6 feet, 4 inches, but somehow the bar jostled off.

Jordan Kenney was fifth with a jump of 5 feet, 8 inches in the high jump.

The relay teams performed well for the Thorobreds with the 400M relay qualifying for state for sure and the 800M relay and the 3200M relay having a good chance to make it as well.

"This is a very tough region and our third and fourth place times are often better than the winners in other regions," noted Coach Robert Walker. "In a couple of the relays the runners were tired from competing in other events and did not have their best times. If we qualify for state, I look for some improved legs to be run."

The 400M relay team of Deshon Talbott, Justin Hunter, Jovon Williams and Jordan Kenney finished second in :45.45 while the 800M relay of Malcolm Walker, Hunter, Williams and Kenney was fourth in 1:35.98.

Shane Palmer, Brock Jenkins, Austin Short and Grant Carr ran the 3200M relay in 8:53.28 for a third place finish and the 1600M relay of Talbott, Jenkins, Short and Carr was sixth in 3:42.18.

Derek Nunnelley was a fast fourth in 110M hurdles running the distance in :16.54. Colton Burus was right behind Nunnelley in fifth in :16.62. Nunnelley was also fifth in the 300M hurdles.

Grant Carr ran the 400M dash in :52.61 to come in fifth, which may qualify him for the state.

"Grant was a little fatigued from running the two long relays but still had a presentable time," noted Walker.

The Kentucky State High School Track and Field Meet will be held on the track at the University of Kentucky on May 23.

Next week's paper will have more information as to how many qualifiers the Fillies and Thorobreds will have competing in that meet.

Farming

Tips on having a successful garden

By GARY CARTER, Co. EXT. AGENT

Mulching
Mulching can make all the difference between a garden that is a joy to work and watch and one that is tedious and untidy.
Among mulch's greatest attributes is its ability to help control weeds.
Mulch also helps conserve soil moisture by 50 percent or more by covering the soil to slow down evaporation. UK soil scientists have found that a mulch on the soil surface can conserve about six inches of soil water during growing season. Most of the water conserved will reduce and/or delay plant water stress.

Mulch reduces erosion by breaking the impact of rain and wind.
Nutrients do not leach so readily under plastic and some paper mulches because less rainwater penetrates.
Vegetables remain cleaner in mulched gardens because they have less contact with the soil.
Finally, organic matter mulches can keep soil cool.

Using Plastic Mulch
The most common materials for mulching are either plastic or organic matter. Plastic materials are usually three or four feet wide and are black, white, brown or clear.

The darker plastics are recommended because they do not allow weed growth; clear materials act as greenhouse under which weeds flourish. White plastic is used for summer planting, because it is cooler.
Plastic mulch tends to warm the soil by about one to five degrees. This extra warmth can boost plants such as tomatoes in the spring and can promote quite vigorous growth of heat-loving vine crops, such as melons and squashes, in the summer.
• Wait for a calm day to lay plastic mulch.
• Slip a hoe or rake handle through the roll of polyethylene.

• Place the roll at the beginning of the row.
• Hoe furrows about four inches deep on either side of the roll.
• Roll out the polyethylene this distance.
• Tuck the edge into the furrows.
• Cover them with soil and proceed another five feet until the end of the row.
• Slit the plastic at the end of the row and place the edge into the furrow across the row.
• Insert transplants by cutting holes in the plastic with a knife or bulb planter.
• Plastic weed barrier or landscape fabric mulches, which are more expensive than other plastic mulches, allow water to pass through, can be held down with large wire staples, and can be reused in subsequent years.

Some soil between the rows will remain unmulched. Or, you may wish to use newspapers and organic mulch to control weeds between the plastic strips.
The major disadvantage of most plastic mulches is that you have to remove them and dispose of them. They cannot be tilled under or left on the soil, but must be lifted and discarded. New biodegradable mulches are now available at some garden stores.

Plant propagation from softwood cuttings

The most common form of plant propagation is digging and dividing which is frequently done in early spring before new growth or in the fall before plants go dormant. Digging and dividing is great for herbaceous plants but those plants that are considered woody ornamentals do not divide as easily with a spade. In this case we can look to the technique of rooting out softwood cuttings from the mother plant.

Greenhouses have stock plants that they maintain from year to year to provide the cuttings for each year's new generation. We can do this at home on a smaller scale with just a few tools. Grab a pair of sharp pruners, some light soilless potting mixture (like peat and perlite), some small 3-inch pots, a few plastic baggies, Popsicle sticks and some rooting hormone (like Rootone). Any variation on the theme will work we just want to be able to create mini greenhouses for each cutting once we prepared them.

Jeneen Wiche
www.SwallowRailFarm.com

June is a good time of the year to propagate by cutting those plants that root out well from ripened soft wood. This soft wood is essentially new, succulent growth that has been allowed to "ripen" but not harden off totally. Think about the new growth of a hydrangea in June: not too soft and not too hard. In fact, I think hydrangeas are one of the easiest to propagate through cuttings and this is what I'll be doing this year. Give it a try.

Take about a 3 to 4-inch stocky cutting from the tip of a stem. Strip the leaves from the stem except for the top 2 (if they are really large you can trim them up with scissors to balance the top to the bottom). Dip the stem into a little bowl of rooting hormone and then into your prepared pots filled with peat and perlite (I use a pencil to prepare the little hole and I moisten the peat prior to sticking the cuttings in). Craft a little greenhouse with your Popsicle stick and baggy (poke a couple of holes in your baggy for a little air circulation). Keep the soil moist, not soggy, using a spray bottle while the cutting is under plastic until your cutting roots out.

Once rooted you can remove the greenhouse but continue to use a spray bottle to mist your plants. Their roots are still developing so some mist on the foliage provides necessary moisture. Cuttings generally root out better under mist so dampen the soil during preparation but follow up with a mist routine until you take the greenhouse baggy off. Let them mature somewhere in the shade outside and begin to water them as needed (which will likely be often). They will appreciate the humidity of our summers more than the cool and dry conditions of an air-conditioned house so I prefer to move them outdoors in the shade. As the summer progresses your hydrangea cuttings will mature enough to be planted in the garden by fall.

Some plants root out better as hard wood cuttings so you would wait until late summer to propagate. Hardwood cuttings can be rooted out in a prepared bed (sandy soil and some kind of cold frame rigged up are good here) outside and good candidates include shrubby plants like roses (especially the old-fashioned ones), boxwood, privet and yew.

You can also try the technique of layering branches, stems or runners to the soil in order to root out while they are still attached to the plant. Plants that naturally sucker are good candidates for layering including brambles, lilacs, forsythia, calycanthus, itea and fothergilla.

Sometimes laying happens by accident, a stem will sag to the ground, get covered in a little soil and root out by the end of the season: this is what we want to mimic. You can use a sod staple, brick or other heavy item to hold the branch down until the soil covered part roots out and you cut it away from the mother plant.

2014 acreage reporting deadlines

The USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) reminds agricultural producers of the acreage reporting requirements that must be met prior to receiving program benefits. Filing an accurate acreage report for all crops and land uses, including failed acreage and prevented planting acreage, can prevent the loss of benefits for a variety of programs.

In order to comply with FSA program eligibility requirements, all producers are encouraged to visit their local FSA office to file an accurate crop certification report by the applicable deadline.

The 2014 Kentucky Acreage Reporting deadlines are:

- May 31 - Nursery Preceding Year (Report 2014 for 2015).
- July 15 - All other crops and CRP.
- Sept. 30 - Aquaculture; Value loss and controlled environment crops (except Nursery). Examples: Christmas Trees, Crustaceans, Finfish, Flowers, Ginseng, Grass Sod.
- Dec. 15 - Fall Seeded Small Grains. Examples: Barley, Canola, Oats, Rye, Wheat Preceding Year (Report 2014 for 2015).

The following exceptions apply to the above acreage reporting dates:

- If the crop has not been planted by the above acreage reporting date, then the acreage must be reported no later than 15 calendar days after planting is completed.
- If a producer acquires additional acreage after the above acreage reporting date, then the acreage must be reported no later than 30 calendar days after purchase or acquiring the lease. Appropriate documentation must be provided to the county office.
- If a perennial forage crop is reported with the intended use of "cover only," "green manure," "left standing," or "seed," then the acreage must be reported by July 15.

Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) policy holders should note that the acreage reporting date for NAP covered crops is the earlier of the dates listed above or 15 calendar days before grazing or harvesting of the crop begins.

For questions regarding crop certification and crop loss reports, contact the FSA office at 103 Rodgers Park Dr., 859-234-2646.

National Hospital Week celebrates dedication to making communities healthier

On May 11, the American Hospital Association (AHA) will kick off National Hospital Week. This special, week-long commemoration brings healthcare professionals and their communities together to recognize the work of hospital employees who dedicate themselves to improving the health and wellbeing of people across the country. Bourbon Community Hospital will join in this celebration.

The first formal observation of National Hospital Week occurred in 1921, and AHA and its state affiliates and member hospitals have carried on the tradition of recognizing hospital employees each year for nine decades.

The theme of National Hospital Week in 2014 is "Compassion, Innovation, Dedication: The Commitment Continues." This idea is alive and well at Bourbon Community Hospital.

"From our clinical teams to our environmental services, IT and administrative teams, everyone at Bourbon Community Hospital exemplifies this year's National Hospital Week theme every day," said Joe Koch, CEO of Bourbon Community Hospital. "Our staff shows compassion for our patients, is driven to find innovative ways to improve the care we provide and enhance our patients' experiences, and is dedicated to going above and beyond in serving Central Kentucky. We are excited to recognize National Hospital Week here and take time to honor the unwavering commitment of the Bourbon Community Hospital team to our patients and community."

One of the largest employers in Paris/Bourbon County, Bourbon Community Hospital has more than 250 team members. Bourbon Community Hospital has been an integral part of the community since 1981, supporting residents through a range of healthcare services and programs including Friends and Wellness Works.

Joe Koch, CEO added, "Bourbon Community Hospital is proud to have been a part of the lives of those in this community for 33 years, and we look forward to continuing to find ways to make Bourbon and surrounding counties healthier into the future."

In addition to the services they provide, Bourbon Community Hospital staff support the community in several ways, contributing time, education and resources to organizations such as YMCA, AccuTran, Rotary, Chamber of Commerce, school systems, health fairs at local businesses and speakers for church and civic organizations.

Please join Bourbon Community Hospital in celebrating National Hospital Week and recognizing the residents in Bourbon and surrounding counties in helping to enhance the health of this region.

ADAM H. EDELEN AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

To the People of Kentucky
Honorable Steven L. Beshear, Governor
Lori H. Flanery, Secretary
Finance and Administration Cabinet
Honorable Alex Barnett, Harrison County Judge/Executive
Members of the Harrison County Fiscal Court

Independent Auditor's Report

Report on the Financial Statement

We have audited the accompanying Statement of Receipts, Disbursements, and Changes in Cash Balances and Cash Equivalents - Regulatory Basis of Harrison County, Kentucky, for the year ended June 30, 2013, and the related notes to the financial statement.

Management's Responsibility for the Financial Statement

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of this financial statement in accordance with accounting practices prescribed or permitted by the Department for Local Government to demonstrate compliance with the Commonwealth of Kentucky's regulatory basis of accounting and budget laws. Management is also responsible for the design, implementation, and maintenance of internal control relevant to the preparation and fair presentation of a financial statement that is free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

Auditor's Responsibility

Our responsibility is to express an opinion on this financial statement based on our audit. We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, the standards applicable to financial audits contained in Government Auditing Standards, issued by the Comptroller General of the United States and the Audit Guide for Fiscal Court Audits issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, Commonwealth of Kentucky. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statement is free from material misstatement.

An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the financial statement. The procedures selected depend on the auditor's judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the financial statement, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity's preparation and fair presentation of the financial statement in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity's internal control. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes evaluating the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of significant accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statement. We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinion.

Basis for Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles

As described in more fully in Note 1, the financial statement is prepared by Harrison County, Kentucky on the basis of the accounting practices prescribed or permitted by the Department for Local Government to demonstrate compliance with the Commonwealth of Kentucky's regulatory basis of accounting and budget laws, which is a basis of accounting other than accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

The effects on the financial statement of the variances between the regulatory basis of accounting described in Note 1 and accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, although not reasonably determinable, are presumed to be material.

Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles

In our opinion, because of the significance of the matter discussed in the Basis for Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles paragraph, the financial statement referred to above does not present fairly, in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, the financial position of Harrison County, Kentucky as of June 30, 2013, or changes in financial position or cash flows thereof for the year then ended.

Opinion on Regulatory Basis of Accounting

In our opinion, the financial statement referred to above presents fairly, in all material respects, the cash balances and cash equivalents of Harrison County, Kentucky as of June 30, 2013, and its cash receipts and disbursements, for the year then ended, in accordance with the accounting practices prescribed or permitted by the Department for Local Government described in Note 1.

Emphasis of Matter

As discussed in Note 1 to the financial statement, in fiscal year 2013, the Harrison County Fiscal Court adopted new accounting guidance on a regulatory basis. Our opinion is not modified with respect to this matter.

Other Matters

Our audit was conducted for the purpose of forming an opinion on the financial statement taken as a whole of Harrison County, Kentucky. The budgetary comparison schedules and capital asset schedule are presented for purposes of additional analysis and are not a required part of the financial statement. Such information is the responsibility of management and was derived from and relates directly to the underlying accounting and other records used to prepare the financial statement. The budgetary comparison schedules have been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audit of the financial statement and certain additional procedures, including comparing and reconciling such information directly to the underlying accounting and other records used to prepare the financial statement or to the financial statement itself, and other additional procedures in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. In our opinion, the budgetary comparison schedules are fairly stated in all material respects in relation to the basic financial statement. The capital asset schedule has not been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audit of the basic financial statement and, accordingly, we do not express an opinion or provide any assurance on it.

To the People of Kentucky
Honorable Steven L. Beshear, Governor
Lori H. Flanery, Secretary
Finance and Administration Cabinet
Honorable Alex Barnett, Harrison County Judge/Executive
Members of the Harrison County Fiscal Court

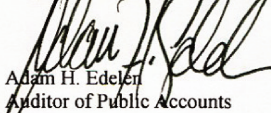

Other Reporting Required by Government Auditing Standards

In accordance with Government Auditing Standards, we have also issued our report dated February 19, 2014 on our consideration of Harrison County, Kentucky's internal control over financial reporting and on our tests of its compliance with certain provisions of laws, regulations, contracts, and grant agreements and other matters. The purpose of that report is to describe the scope of our testing of internal control over financial reporting and compliance and the results of that testing, and not to provide an opinion on the internal control over financial reporting or on compliance. That report is an integral part of an audit performed in accordance with Government Auditing Standards and should be considered in assessing the results of our audit.

Based on the results of our audit, we present the accompanying comment and recommendation included herein, which discusses the following report comments:

2013-01 The County's Deposits Were Not Adequately Pledged And No Collateral Security Agreement Was In Place For Bank Trust Financial

Respectfully submitted,

Adam H. Edelen
Auditor of Public Accounts

February 19, 2014

State law requires the Auditor of Public Accounts to annually audit fiscal courts, county clerks, and sheriffs; and print the results in a newspaper having general circulation in the county. * HARRISON COUNTY IS IN SENATE 27TH DISTRICT AND HOUSE 78TH DISTRICT

LEGAL NOTICE COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY COUNTY OF HARRISON

I, Linda B. Furnish, Clerk of the County, for the County and State aforesaid do certify that the Sample Primary Election Ballot for Harrison County printed above has been prepared, printed and posted in compliance with the Kentucky Revised Statutes and is to be submitted to the qualified voters within Harrison County at the Primary Election to be held on May 20, 2014.

ATTENTION: KENTUCKY HAS A CLOSED PRIMARY. YOU MAY ONLY VOTE FOR CANDIDATES WITHIN YOUR PARTY. ANY REGISTERED VOTER MAY VOTE FOR THE NONPARTISAN CIRCUIT JUDGE "FAMILY COURT" CANDIDATES. IF YOU CHANGED YOUR PARTY AFTER DECEMBER 31, 2013, YOU MAY NOT VOTE FOR A PARTISAN RACE. YOU MAY ONLY VOTE FOR THE NONPARTISAN CIRCUIT JUDGE.

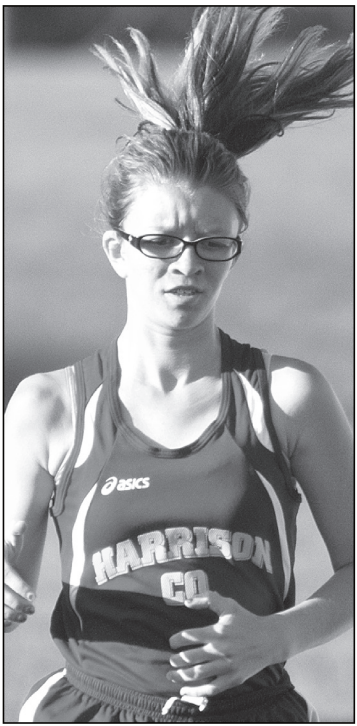

KRS 117.227 provides that the election officers shall confirm the identity of each voter by personal acquaintance or by document, such as motor vehicle operator's license, social security card, credit card or identification card that bears both the picture and signature of the voter. Your cooperation in this matter is appreciated.

Please check the Secretary of State's website www.sos.ky.gov for the Voter Information Center to see if you are registered to vote. It will have your precinct and directions to your polling location. Check www.harrisoncountyfiscalcourt under county clerk for absentee voting requirements, voting locations, magisterial maps, instructional video on the voting machine etc. Be an informed voter. Find out if you are registered, where you vote, and know who will be on your ballot before election day. As always, we will have a demo voting machine available for practice in the clerk's office.

IN WITNESS THEREOF, I have here upon set my hand and seal of office of the Harrison County Clerk in the City of Cynthiana, County of Harrison this the 1st day of May, 2014.
